“ I'll miss his laugh and funny jokes. Every time I called his house, and he answered, he always had something funny to say. But mostly, when momma passed, and I had a panic attack, he was right there too, in the ER. If you were hurting emotionally or physically, he was right there to help comfort you. RIP Clyde. You'll be missed.

“ Wow, where do I begin?? One day my Aunt Sandi was living with Granny trying to raise 2 children as a single parent & seems like the next thing I knew I had a new uncle. Since so many of my family knew Uncle CJ already, making it legal for him & Aunt Sandi just sealed the deal. He might as well helped raise me during my teenage years. Anytime Amy & I could get a chance to get me to stay the night or weekend, we took it. He would take us all to the flea market, we would rent movies when I stayed because they had a VCR & we didn't so of course they were cooler! I first learned how to play Nintendo at their house. He & my Dad hunted, fished, & hung out alot so they were just a constant in my childhood. Now, to find the words to say good-bye was something I wasn't prepared to do but when a loved one unexpectedly departs how can you be prepared? I guess it comes down to this, I love you Uncle CJ & even though I don't think my life choices were something you agreed with, I don't think you ever stopped loving me because I know I never stopped loving you. Who would've thought one of the few times I come home for Christmas & had Christmas at the creek, it would be the last holiday I'd spend with you. I know you, Granny, & Aunt Betty are having a grand reunion & one day we all will be together again.

“ This was a great person! He and I had our differences back when he was dating Sandi, his wife and my sister, when they were just young teenagers. After we met again through the years I realized he had become the great and wonderful he was today. We had both matured, had families and renewed our friendship was even better. I loved him dearly and he will be greatly missed by so many friends, He touched the hearts of everyone he met, as a matter of fact he never met a stranger. My prayers, my heart and most of all my heart goes out to his family. I love all of you greatly! Love Jane (Daniel) Abercrombie
