“ Cynthia Speck Stephens. I have some sweet memories of our Uncle Buddy. Many Saturday mornings, he invited me to come with him to the electronic store where he purchased resistors and capacitors to help build his stereo system while living with the family.. He took many of us boating and taught us how to water ski on Lake Guntersville. He also had quite an accomplished career. He was head of the jet propulsion lab at Redstone Arsenal. I remember him working on his thesis for his masters degree. He was a career civil service executive, GS 15. This was. Before he married Shirley and then retired moving to Arab Alabama. So many fond memories. He was a mentor for many of us growing up. ❤️

Uncles Buddy was a doting uncle to me. Often times he'd buy me sheet music to encourage me to play different genres of music from Dave Brubeck to Joan Baez. He gave me my first big cookbook that taught me basic cooking and baking techniques. The several years he lived with us was delightful in so many ways. He helped to inspire and shape our lives. 💕

“ Before Uncle Buddy married Shirley, he was a regular dinner guest at our house...dinner on the weekdays after work or breakfast, lunch, ad/or dinner on the weekends. Our mother was 10 years older than him and looked after him quite a bit when he was growing up. There were 7 kids in Fayes' family and Uncle Buddy really tried to give each one of us special attention. He could be found most of my early years watching cartoons with the younger ones ...we fought over who got to sit by him. He also expressed an interest in our education by asking us how we were doing in our classes. I remember him bringing his HP calculator over and showing us how it worked...it replaced his slide rule! I thought that was so cool! He was on top of technology and shared various things he was exposed to...computers, etc... He worked on small electrical projects to show us how things worked. I am the youngest of the 7 and one memory I have is when I was around 4 years old...I filled out an order form for some Disney Storybooks and mailed it in. Well they sent them with a bill and my parents were so mad..they didn't have extra $$ to spend on things like that. He was there when the books came in and...he paid for them. He told me I could keep the books as long as I read them every day. He also bought me a really cool bike with a banana seat on it, a tape recorder, and many other special things that made life as a kid fun. It was the 60s and into the early 70s when all this was going on. Fond memories with UB ( as we called him as we got older) 😊. Thank you for the memories.
