“ My yearly dose of melancholy comes for me again. I'm not sitting around sad that the world lost such a good one or anything. "No one gets outta life alive" as you used to say. Each individual has and will again experience loss. Even the lesser sentient animals grieve. I don't worry myself, ole friend, with things that are not reversible such as your passing. I find my moments of sadness come from knowing you're not here to spoil my little Eben Wayne nor see him being brought up in the love I am fortunate enough to see to. He is gaining momentum with a little thing we call the English language. Each word he learns to enunciate sounds more cute then the last. Last week he would say "Noot Nuuuu"... This week its a crisp "Night Night"... You would have such fun with him. Noot nu woulda made you laugh so hard to hear. He's a sweet boy and I hope its you and God giving him subtle pointers on how to be so good-hearted. As far as life goes for me not everything has been comfortable and pleasant this year; but as always, lessons learned are an addition and gain to one's character and my blessings are well-counted. I have faith in a future I'll be proud to be a part of. I don't know a number for the thousands of years you've experienced outside of the spacial restraints of this physical universe. I'm glad to know you're enjoying them in a place my earth bound mind cannot comprehend, though. I miss you, G. I love ya, my homie. We will catch up again next celestial cycle.

Oh and please make sure God knows I love Him. Maybe ask Him to always look after and be with Eben. I also would ask that you beg Him to continue to mend things between myself and Eben's mom, Kimberly. The uncertainty of the future wears on me now that I am not my only priority and main concern. I pray God has a path in works for my House to be restored as I know He intended before. Glory to God Alway.

Your Pal,

“ My departed friend,
This time of year always comes with sadness. I miss you and I wish you could see what all is going on these days. My boy is 8 months old and he is perfect in every way; he is beautiful, intelligent, loving, and mischievous. I still blacksmith full time. It is tough and not very profitable, but God sends me little blessings and messages that let me know it is what I need to be doing. The world is in shambles, you would hate the state of our nation. Ive made several new friends this past year and they have all heard a story or ten about you. It makes me feel close to ya to talk about our memories; or it makes your absence hurt a little less. Your memory is always alive with me, G.

All my love, Homie.

I see last year my message was not left here. I'm sure someone passed it on. God knows our hearts after all.
I got married last year. Eben's mother and myself are happy as can be and February 6th we celebrate our 1st anniversary as a married couple. I wish you were here to laugh and smile with me one friend. As I tell people often, you were one of a kind and a perfect gem. I love you, G. I'll see you again some day and the void left without you in this world will be filled. Peace Out Girl Scout. You are always remembered.

All my love and fond memories,

“Ole friend of mine, I had a dream 2 nights ago that me, you, and Ann Bailey were sitting in a bright white room cutting up while we drank coffee. Ann kept saying, "Wes, I don't know where you come up with all this!" as the two of you were laughing til tears. I guess I was telling some entertaining stories. You and Ann were dressed in white, soft canvas robes. They looked very comfortable. I woke up after that dream at about 2AM feeling a little sad, and I've been sad a few days knowing that today was approaching, but it is a beautiful day here on earth. Much warmer than the weatherman predicted, a blessing to me. I have a son on the way. I wish you were here so you could take part in the adventure with me, but you'll get to meet him soon enough. He will be called "Eben Wayne McCravy" and we expect him sometime at the end of May. If souls originate in the place you dwell, would you do me a favour and show him how to love with a heart like your's? I miss you, G. I'm glad to see their is coffee in Heaven. I will see you soon, Dear Friend.

Your Pal,

Wesley W. McCravy

“ My dear friend, I miss you like childhood. I miss our talks, our laughs, and our moments of sincere encouragement that so few find among their peers. Its been many months since you've passed, but as you and God remind me in prayer, you are outside of time and a day is a thousand years now; still I carry our memories throughout my day and look back in fond remembrance. Heather and I were sitting in church the other Sunday and somehow a birthday card you had given me had made its way within the pages. I smiled and told Heather that you were there in service with us. My smile became a flood of tears and I'm sure I looked like a fool crying in the middle of church, but Heather pulled me close on her shoulder and I knew all the comforts I needed were within those walls and in my heart. You were certainly right about Heather, she does have a unique sweetness that cannot be duplicated. I just wanted to make a post for closure-sake. When we meet again I'll be anxious to hear the story of all you've learned since you have been gone; one of victory and glory.
