“ I've been talking to Wes at work a couple of times a day for the last several years. He was always excited when football season rolled around. His favorite subject was to talk about his family. I know that he loved them a lot & I know that they love him. He was a good man that was respected by everyone that he met. I will miss Wes as will all that have known him.

“ I Remember working with Keri and her telling me abt how Wes loved Alabama football and telling me that he wouldn't mind my son and I coming over to watch a game one day. She wasn't lying... Lol. That man loved his games and when they won, he played his country and Elvis but at the same time listening to my music from my production team... Lol he didn't care listening, he was just so happy that Alabama won. Ever since then, we remaind tight and talked everyday that we worked together. Man, we just had a talk on Thursday and Wes, all I gotta say buddy is.... I did it. I am so sorry that I had to tell you this way on this post. I will NEVER forget you man. Like I said on the song that I made for my mom, Your in good hands now. I'm so SORRY!

“ There are so many Wes had a personality as unique as he was. He could always make you smile no matter what. But if I had to share one it would be when he was about 10-11 and aggravating Wanda in his special way. She chased him around the table til she got so tickled she couldn't chase him anymore. I laughed til I nearly peed my pants. Love you Wes!
